'Buyer, Seller' Held in New Rum Test

Two Held in Rum Test

Man and Woman Are Seized as "Buyer and Seller" by Washington Officers

Washington, Feb. 15 (AP)—The new selected by Washington police to test whether the buyer of liquor can be prosecuted under the Volstead Act, was called in court today, and John Wayland, the accused, held proceedings by pleading not guilty and demanding the constitutional guarantee of a trial by jury.

The case then was entered on the court calendar, with indications that it would be called for trial within a month.

Washington, Feb. 15 (AP)—A new effort to test the guilt or innocence, under the prohibition laws, of the purchaser of illicit liquor is to be made by Washington officers.

Falling in their first attempt several days ago for lack of evidence, they are now in a more active phase of buying and a woman accused of selling.

Two patrolmen of the Washington police force assert that they saw the framed take place.

The alleged purchaser, John Wayland, 27 years old, of Cleveland, Va., and the alleged seller, Myrtle Schmitt, 32, a negro, were arrested by Officers B. S. Boyer and M. Wilson.

The patrolmen said they were looking in through the window of the woman's home and saw her give Wayland a gallon of liquor and receive $10 in exchange for it. They also heard her say, "the conversation that accompanied the transaction."

Assistant United States Attorney David A. Clark announced that the woman would be prosecuted under the Jones law and the man under section 6 of the Volstead law, which reads: "No one shall manufacture, sell, purchase, transport, receive, or possess any liquor, except by legal means provided for elsewhere in the law."

The new case follows closely upon that in which Joseph P. Carey was charged with a violation of section 6 through the purchase of liquor. That case collapsed when the authorities were unable to produce the other party to the sale.

U. S. Seeks Way to Speed French and Italian Pact

Morrow in a Conference With Grandi in Move to Save the Big 5 Parley

London, Feb. 15 (AP)—Already faced with the problem of helping to reconcile the French naval program with the position of the other powers at the naval conference, the American naval delegation arrived today to assist in an understanding between France and Italy of the difficult parity problem which in itself may threaten complete success of the conference.

Though W. Morrow, ambassador to France, and Grandi, chief of the Italian delegation, were expected to meet tomorrow, it was more than passing interest that Morrow was a party to the conversations the Americans had with the French and Italian delegations.

One of the first developments of the week, it is understood, probably will be the issuance of an Italian statement outlining Rome's requirements. Thus, the series of pronouncements by the French premier returns from Paris on Wednesday.

Another important event of next week will likely be a meeting between Grandi and Premier Tardieu of France, immediately after the French premier returns from Paris on Wednesday.

Grandi, from France-Italian activities there was little in progress in conference.

Morrow was the only one of the American delegation who did not indulge in a weekend laydown from the strain of the conference. Secretary of State Stimson was playing golf at Stan-

The holdup men made their escape by running down the New Haven railroad tracks in the direction of South Worcester, and although Sjostedt pursued in an automobile, he lost trace of them.

Sjostedt, who lives at 15 Erie st., was about to pay off the employees, their wages being contained in envelopes.

COACH AND VIGOROUS, THINKS MAN CAN REACH 100 EASILY

COACH AND VIGOROUS, THINKS MAN CAN REACH 100 EASILY

Auto Magnate Has No Faith in the London Parley: See Bigger News Resulting

By JAMES L. KIGALEN, Copyright 1930, by International News Service

Port Myers, Fla., Feb. 15.—"Keep active and you will keep young," Henry Ford, 66, but chuck full of energy, made his observation today during an interview at his winter estate here on the banks of the Caloosahatchee river.

Walking, running, wood-chopping and dancing are Ford's favorite forms of exercise. He interrupted the two-hour interview by suggesting a walk. The walk developed into a new run as Ford, the reporter at his side, tramped for several miles in the environs of Port Myers.

"I don't believe a man should settle down into a life of inactivity merely because he gets along in years," said Ford, as he stepped off block after block without showing the slightest indication of tiredness. "There is nothing like keeping alive, in mind and body."

BALANCE HIS DIET

"My health is always just as I treat myself. If I overeat, or eat the wrong things, or dine late at night, I pay the price. I am not a diet but I am experimenting with diet. I try to eat carefully, sparingly and regularly."

"I do not think it is a good idea to mix your food. I advise an all-fish meal, an all-protein meal, and at all start meal as a well balanced diet for a day."

"There is no person as a man should not live to 100 if he is temperate, keeps at work and in the habit of striving to be of benefit to mankind."

"Food takes a morning walk about a clock, varying the monotony by making into a cup occasionally. Usually during the forenoon he engages in a little vigorous wood-chopping which is good for the arms and body and keeps the muscles active and the nerves in the hands because the exercise makes agility and the muscles soothe the mind and raise the state of the day."

"It is Ford's idea that a person should be temperate about everything. It is the only way, he believes, to learn during the interview that he still adheres to the belief that prohibition is the way for the country."

THINKS COUNTRY IS DRY.

"I think prohibition is contributing factor toward the prosperity of the country," he was asked.

"It certainly is," he replied, emphatically.

"He is firmly convinced, he said, that there has been no 'casing up' in the enforcement of the Volstead law despite all the recent efforts to prohibit the law. He declared that the law is being 'well enforced'."

"Prohibition could be completely enforced, he ventured, if the proper steps were taken. One thing, he needed would be 'real sincerity' in some quarters."

"The Army and Navy could handle the job of enforcement and make the Volstead law a reality, he believes, although the situation does not warrant such drastic action."

"All that I care personally is that the prohibition law remain on the books," said Ford. "In our factories I find men who are drinking their way out, for we want sober men only, and that goes for all of our employees."

"Mr. Ford views the work of the London naval conference with skepticism. He thinks the conference is merely for the purpose of effecting a balance of power between Great Britain and the United States—to determine, as he expressed it, which is to have the biggest pistol." He doubts that the delegates are sincerely seeking to effect a reduction in armaments.

Asked if he was in favor of the United States recognizing Soviet Russia, Ford replied:

"I think Russia will work out her own problems without any favor from me. Eventually, however, the British will colonize that country for they know how to do it. They send English, Scotch and Irish into countries and successfully colonize them."

Australia Rejects Demands of Miners

Sydney, Australia, Feb. 15 (AP).—E. G. Theodore, treasurer of Australia, rejected a demand from the New South Wales Labor party that the federal government should commandeer coal mines, prosecute the government operators and the coal owners and pay the unemployed miners a basic wage.

Mr. Theodore declared these demands had been already submitted to Prime Minister James Scullin, head of the Australian Labor government, who decided they were un-constitutional and could not be put into effect.

WIFE DEFENDS COAST GUARD

Sweeping denials of having been in any way connected with the liquor selling charges and mysterious shooting of her husband were made today by Mrs. Frank Lepore following the trial of Lepore at the navy said on charges of selling liquor to shipmates.

Mrs. Lepore explained the shooting of her husband in the Wilmington apartment last June as due to accidental discharge of a gun he was cleaning and emphatically denied that she and her husband were in a jealous rage and later came to the defense by trying to destroy evidence of liquor selling.

Lepore is a first-class gunner's mate on the Coast Guard boat Mojave and was tried by a court-martial board headed by Capt. William E. Maclean.

Charges of running a speakeasy during his convalescence from the gunshot wound were brought by Capt. Cecil E. Gabbett.

Mrs. Lepore denied that either she or her husband was arrested by civilian authorities on rum charges and also that she tried to swallow a paper containing names of alleged shipmate customers of her husband.

"Capt. Gabbett asked me to write the summer of men who were in my husband's room and he would have collected for me, as he could not give any of my husband's name," Mrs. Lepore explained. "When I wrote the names on a slip of paper he took it and refused to do anything for me, but ordered me off the ship."

"This was the last introduced as evidence at the court-martial trial, she declared.

While reluctant to speak of the case, Commander H. R. Serles emphatically denied that the shooting took place on the Mojave.

"Lepore had always had a good record until he shot himself into this mess," he said. "Since he received the injury the coast guard has provided him with hospitalization and sick leave, and Capt. Gabbett has given him and Mrs. Lepore every consideration."

The case lasted five hours with six witnesses testifying.

THE WAGE JAM IN VERMONT RIVER

Swanton, Vt., Feb. 15 (AP).—Threatened with its second serious flood of the winter, the Vermont river has turned to chemistry in the hope of finding a solution for conditions in the Mississippi river valley.

Dr. Howard Barr and Dr. A. E. McNeill, professors in the search department of McGill university, Montreal, surveyed the river yesterday and later submitted estimates to the selection of the probable cost.

Dr. Barr's method of breaking up the ice was by spraying with a powerful chemical solution brought him into public notice only last month when he succeeded in freeing the Italian freighter Conestoga from an ice jam in Quebec harbor.

The ice disintegrator the motor after Dr. Barr had applied his solution with a high powered pump.

Last month the jam reached four miles in length and inundated a number of establishments here before a cold wave halted the danger. Now, with the late winter thaw in progress, the situation is again becoming serious unless the river can be cleared from the power dam in this town to the mouth in Lake Champlain, seven miles away.

LIONS ROAR IN GREAT FILM OF CONGO

By THE DANIEL DAVENPORT
I GREATLY appreciate the opportunity of reviewing the picture, "Jango," which is shown at Tremont Temple. It is a fine picture, and I am sure that it will be a success. The picture is a story of a man who is captured by a tribe of savages in the Congo. He is then taken to a village where he is treated as a slave. He escapes and goes to a village where he is treated as a hero. The picture is a fine example of the new type of picture, one that is both interesting and educational.

How a Girl Helped Her Affianced in His Business

By HELEN KLUMPH
From Marion Davies forthcoming all-talking picture by Warner Bros. and Edwin Justus Mayer, based on the play "Dulcy," by Marie Connolly and George Kaufman.

CHAPTER I
GORDON was barely awake, but he realized that the ghastly strain of listening to Leach was over, and even in his slumberous state he was conscious of Forbes, rising with a groan as he chuckled his aching back. Gone were his hopes of interesting Forbes in his business. Financially, he was sunk. All he could hope for now was to protect, dear, little well-meaning Dulcy from the burst of rage that was sure to come.

Even Dulcy became vaguely conscious that her efforts in entertaining Forbes had gone awry. She started across the room toward him, a little timid about making another suggestion.

"Mr. Forbes, she began reluctantly, "wouldn't you like to play a game of billiards?"

Forbes straightened up. There was a faint gleam in his eyes.

"Billiards," he gasped. "Billiards? Why didn't you mention that sooner and spare me all this?"

Gordon beamed at Dulcy with a smile of forgiveness. After all, the day might be saved. Even Dulcy could guess right once, if she kept guessing long enough.

He didn't know that Fate was waiting in the billiard room, all ready to put out her foot and trip him.

Arm in arm Forbes and Gordon set out blithely for the billiard room. They were even cordial when Van Dyke asked if he might come along and watch.

Gordon pinched himself, convinced now that the nightmare was all over. Billiards would put Forbes in a good humor and he might talk business to him after all. The only disquieting thought that disturbed his serenity was that now that Forbes was out of the way, Dulcy would maneuver to throw Vincent and Angela together.

His guess was right! The men were hardly out of the room when Dulcy spoke up brightly:

"I always say that one touch of Nature makes the whole world something or other." It was growing late and Dulcy was running out of apt quotations. "Anyway, don't you and Angela want to go out in the garden and look at the moonlight?"

A moment later Dulcy heard Gordon's voice frantically calling to her from the billiard room.

"The billiard balls! Oh, you want them," she asked, meanwhile wondering what she would have done with them. As she hurried down the hall she saw various suggestions of things to come to mind.

There weren't in any of the places she might have been expected to put them. She was a learning ball for one. When they were found Gordon drew a long breath of relief, and then Forbes to start the game, as soon as all left the room.

Forbes was not a man to take any game lightly, particularly billiards, and when after a carefully calculated shot, the balls all rolled toward him, he looked on, aghast. Again he placed them, and before he could take aim, the balls wheeled about coolly and surged toward him.

He was beyond profanity; he was even beyond speech. "Oh, come on," Van Dyke urged playfully. "This is lots of fun. You don't have to hit the balls at all." "Gordon apologized, "awfully sorry. Dulcy must have moved the table. And she didn't get it quite level."

The old glimmer of hope that had momentarily parted the clouds overhanging Forbes' week-end vanished, and as he stamped from the room he muttered, "That girl! She couldn't even leave a billiard table alone. She probably talked to it until it sagged from exhaustion."

It might have been better for all concerned if he had left the billiard room a few minutes earlier, or if he had never gone there at all.

For when Dulcy returned to the Annual Income 9 Per Cent of All U. S., Totalling Over 6 and a Half Billions

Enlightening statistics regarding the group of six New England States were disclosed by a research just completed by the New England Council's research committee and made public today.

The survey, summarized in a folder entitled "The People of New England" and prepared for business firms and organizations for distribution to customers and members, showed that:

One person is added in New England's population about every four and two-thirds minutes.

In the three-year period, 1925-1928, New England's population increased at the rate of 31.2 a day, or 342,414 in three years, bringing the total up to 8,578,000.

While the per capita income for the country as a whole rose 3 per cent between 1919 and 1926, the average New Englander's income increased 4 per cent.

In New England more families pay income taxes, more homes have telephones, more homes are wired for electricity and more persons have savings accounts per 100 than in the United States as a whole.

While New England comprises only 2 per cent of the area of the United States, it represents 10 per cent of the country's wealth.

SHOWS GAIN IN WEALTH.

This group of states showed a gain of $116 in the per capita wealth between 1921 and 1927, whereas there was a loss of $45 in the same figure for the nation at large in the same period.

Over six and one-half million dollars represents the annual income of New England, or about 9 per cent of the country's total.

Manufactures in the largest single source of income. Factory workers are receiving an average wage 14 per cent higher than they received in 1919, which in round figures amounts to an increase of about $146 a year.

The individual bank deposits represent 12 1/2 per cent of the total of such deposits of the country, amounting in 1928 to over six and one-half billion dollars.

LEADS ALL IN SCHOOLS.

There are twice as many schools in a given area in New England as in the country as a whole, and the students remain in the schools longer. New England's private schools have over 13 per cent of the enrollment in such schools in the country.

The public schools have a total annual enrollment of more than one and one-half millions. The college enrollment comprises 8 per cent of the country's total.

Members of the research committee are: Henry G. Lumbard, Auburn, Me.; George A. Fletcher, Berlin, N. H.; Ernest H. Warr, Dorset, Vt.; Gust Puri, Boston, Phil C. Wentworth, Providence, R. I., and H. C. Knight, New Haven, Ct.

Man in the Moon Holds No Secrets From Star Gazing Smith Girls

Alice Davis, Albany, N. Y., a member of the 1930 class at Smith College, knows her stars and planets. She is shown peering through the giant telescope at the college observatory, while Elizabeth Bellah, '32, of Montclair, N. J., jots down the notes.

Augusta Morse, '30, of Dobbs Ferry, N. Y., is shown at the transit, measuring time by the stars. The instrument which she is using is one of the most interesting of the time and space gauges at the Smith College laboratory. (Staff photos.)

CLOTHING OF WOMAN ALSO FOUND

Letters in Bags Addressed to Mrs. Cappel, Missing From Dedham

Boston and Dedham police were seeking Mrs. Miss Cappel, 35 today, in an effort to solve the mystery of a suitcase and two bags containing women's clothing and other belongings found by three men at Mount Pleasant, Dedham, and Washington St., West Roxbury, near the Dedham line.

A checkup from letters found in the suitcase showed that all the articles belonged to Mrs. Cappel, who had a room at 25 Walnut St., Dedham.

Cappel left that address yesterday afternoon to go to work as a domestic servant for a woman in Newton, who said she had no telephone, she did not reach her destination.

Mrs. Cappel and her mother also found in the country, but Captain James P. Smith of West Roxbury division, who is in charge of the investigation, was dissatisfied to learn a four day search, although the Charles river is not far distant. He sent Special Officers Dillon and Keller to Dedham to make inquiries of the woman, who is known to have visited recently while waiting for the rail to return to see a friend in the New York house, where she had formerly been employed.

Police say Mrs. Cappel has two children, a daughter, Miss Margaret Edward Dunn of Concord, Robert William of Scituate, and John John of Bingham, all at West Roxbury, and all eight years old.

Police are still looking for the woman, who is said to have been seen the year and of the cemetery.

Smith College Girls Expert Star Gazers

Smith College girls are becoming star gazers and you can depend upon it they certainly will know their constellations and comets. It isn't a theoretical knowledge of astronomy that the girls are learning in their classes but a practical idea of what causes the Milky Way and what becomes of shooting stars.

When the girls go for a stroll in the moonlight on a balmy spring evening, the man in the moon will be an old friend to them and unable to beguile them with any of his wiles. They will know him for the fake that he is and see him as shining only in the reflected glory of the sun.

It is the aim of Miss Harriet W. Higgins, head of the astronomy department at Smith College, to familiarize the student with the sky for her own use and enjoyment. Therefore, a large part of each girl's work is done with her own eyes rather than through a telescope.

One of the most interesting instruments used by the girls in their work is the transit instrument, used to find the time by the stars. The transit is similar in use to a constant in use in Washington, on which star time is found translated into time of standard time and broadcast throughout the country.

Another part of the girls' work is making drawings. Following her observations sketches are made. Possibly of Jupiter, showing its movement among the stars and its speed and motion.

CAMBRIDGE R. R. GATES TO GO

The Public Utilities Commission today approved the petition of the Boston & Albany railroad for authority to substitute traffic signal lights for gates at the grade crossings at Harvard and at Framingham, Cambridge.

The two streets, more than 500 feet apart, cross the Grand Junction branch of the Boston & Albany at grade. No passenger trains operate over these tracks except in an emergency and speed of all trains is limited to six miles an hour. There are approximately 11 train movements over these crossings in 24 hours.

The control box operating the signals will be handled by a uniformed railroad police officer.

The commission approved also the installation of traffic signal lights at the grade crossing at Medford St., Somerville, these lights to be manually operated during the winter 24 hours a day and night.

Browning Love Notes Gift to Wellesley

Wellesley College is to get the January 10, 1841, to September 18, 1846, the last written day before they left London for a few days after their secret marriage.

After their marriage, it is said they were never separating and the letters have been acquired from the New York dealer, Robert North by the Wellesley trustees, for the use of the college, which presented them to the institution.

Mr. Harvard is said to have paid $5,000 and $10,000 for the letters.

These letters are considered among the greatest literary treasures which have come to this country. They are being preserved in the rare room of the Wellesley library, which contains many other works of importance covering the whole range of English literature from Chaucer to Massfield.

The letters are a memorial to Alice Brown Palmer, late president of Wellesley. The correspondence between the Brownings which is said to be represented in its entirety by this collection, dates from 1830.

HUNT SCOLLAY SQ. FIREBUG

Fire threatened to wipe out Howland in the Scollay sq. section early today when a blaze, said by the police to be incendiary, burned damaged the three-story wooden building at 29 Howard St.

According to police of the Joy St. station, the fire was seen by Patrolman Joseph Madden while on patrol of his beat. The entire third floor was in flames. He called an alarm and a fireman who also saw the fire about the same time, arrived to assist him from another box.

Firemen rushed up to reach the burning building but found that the fire was in flames. The fire was seen by a fireman who also saw the fire about the same time, arrived to assist him from another box.

Police investigation revealed that two men were seen to leave the building shortly before the fire was discovered.

When firemen arrived the entire top floor was in flames, and for some time the firemen were kept busy containing the blaze to the one building as a shower of sparks fell on several adjacent wooden buildings. Firemen were stationed on the burning building, while others extinguished the dropping embers.

The loss is estimated by officials at the vicinity of $100,000.

PIERCE-TAING CUTS WALL ST.
ADVANCE

By STANLEY M. PRINCE

New York, Feb. 15 (AP)—The irregular advance of the past week was partially canceled by heavy week-end profit-taking in index

a short session of the stock market. A few specialties continued to advance, however, and leading shares generally were responding 2 to 5 points.

The reaction reflected growing concern over the technical position of the market, with the steady stimulation of the short interest during the past few days. While commodity houses generally have been advocating the retention of good stocks for long-term investment, several of late have been vacating positions by taking playing the market for a week.

TRADE NEWS GOOD

The week-end trade and business review were somewhat more cheerful for several weeks, and pointing to broadening of the general economy.

Traders appeared to feel, however, that the improved conditions had been amply discounted for the moment by the steady, if gradual, advance during recent weeks.

Credit conditions were not in favor of the market, as yesterday rates fell over the week-end.

While reduction in credit rates in smaller commercial borrowers has been disappointing, credit conditions are still generally ample.

Although all money rates in 4 to 6 percent, money brokers expect that there will be ample supply of funds at 5 percent next week.

STEEL DRIVEN DOWN

1-2 Steel, which reached a new high level for the year, was reacted about 2 points. Although all operations have continued to gain, the market for week-end work-review stated that the advance in steel production for the industry generally during January was less than the output in orders would have indicated, therefore partially in anticipation of orders.

Eastman Kodak, which jumped 12 points yesterday, led a group of stock. Union Pacific lost 4 points, and National Lead 3 points. Products declined about 4 points each.

Shares losing 2 to 3 points included American Tobacco R. Vincent, John Hancock, American

Refrigerator, Standard Oil of N. J.,

International Telephone was a strong stop, moving up after 2 points. Large scale buyers of stock, defining stop up more than 10 points, showed little interest in the American Machine & Tool

Company, American National Bank of New York, and American

Automotive. A. B. and W. W.

The closing time was heavy.

BROAD UPWARD
MOVES SEEN

Broadway & Wall, in their

February investment review, expressed a decided optimism in regard to the business outlook over the next year, and believed that while there may be some reaction in stock prices this month that the general trend of the market will be followed by a broad upward movement.

Expressing the view that the general trend of the market is toward lower levels, they pointed out the position of fixed income securities, they said, that today's price is unduly high, and that the market will be adjusted for the
